Passenger Check List

♦ Dress in layers: Long pant legs; or shorts in combination with a zip up or slip on outer pant is ideal. Short sleeve T-Shirt with a light long sleeve windbreaker or long sleeve shirt. Footwear should ideally have sufficient ankle support; hiking or snowboarding boots. You'll need to be able to run in them. If not then wear comfortable tennis shoes with mid ankle height socks. Before and immediately after the flight you will want to dress down to stay cool depending on the weather.

♦ Refreshment: Bring plenty of bottled water, fruit or snack bars. If you are going to bring it with you on the flight then make it something that can be packed away without crushing it. Hint; you can freeze your water or snack bars the night before so that they are good and cold when you want them.

♦ Transportation: For your comfort I would recommend that you bring your own transportation so that you can depart directly after your flight. It would be helpful if you have a friend or family member accompany you and act as a driver to return our transportation to the landing area while we are flying. We will meet at our Bellyache landing zone and then carpool to the launch site on Bellyache Ridge. If you do not have your own transportation we will provide it, but expect delays and to be packed together with loads of equipment. Your friend can man a camera or video camera and then drive our car back down to the landing zone to meet you.

♦ Equipment: We shall provide a helmet and gloves. However, should you have your own gloves that fit you properly this may be preferable. You can also take a disposable camera with you on the flight. I’d recommend that you attach a string to it so that if dropped it can be easily retrieved. I also have digital cameras for you and family members. All other equipment shall be provided for your flight. You will be required to sign a statement of health, a release of liability and waiver and release of liability from the United States Hang Gliding Association. Tandem Paragliding flights are afforded by a special FAA exemption on an instructional basis for the purpose of promoting the sport.

♦ Directions to Bellyache Ridge: If we don't make plans to meet at one of the local coffee shops then we shall meet at a designated time at our landing zone in Edwards. To get there exit I-70 at Edwards (Exit NO. 163) and travel south on Edwards Access Road. At the main stop light in Edwards take a right on the frontage road – Highway 6. Continue traveling west until you pass the trailer park on either side of the road. Turn right on Hill Crest Dr. over the bridge over the Eagle River. Just the other side of the tracks; take a left on Red Canyon Estates Road and travel parallel to I-70 headed west. Travel straight ahead when you come to a small amount of pavement (located near a turn to the right and passage under I-70 that serves Red Mountain Canyon). Check the mirror and slow down being aware that traffic can exit this passage under I-70. Be alert. Just a couple of hundred feet further down a dirt road you will be stopped from traveling further by a gated fence. Pull your car to the side of the road and wait here. Most likely several other vehicles will park here as the pilots aggregate.

♦ Contact: All Paraglider Pilots carry commercial band radios tuned locally to frequency 151.925 MHz. Stop any pilot and ask him to attempt to contact any other pilot you may need. If you have brought a friend along we can provide them with a radio so that you can communicate with them during your flight. Or if you prefer you can get out your own Talk-Abouts and stay in touch this way. This is helpful for staying in touch. Cellular telephone service in the landing zone is hit and miss, however, if you wish to contact David Champaign you can dial 970/845-7321 to reach him on his cell phone or leave a message for him. It's important to be on time.

♦ Requirements: Ideally your weight should be between 100 and 225 pounds US; although we can accommodate passengers outside these weights with advance notice and proper conditions. Let your pilot know exactly how much you weight so that he can appropriate. Prior to your flight you shall be briefed on flight plan, a few directive commands and use of the equipment.

RIDING THE WINDS

Imagine being a modern Daedalus, strapping on your wing, and gliding above the earth—paragliding, in fact, on a wing of nylon. The basic skills are easy to learn, and flying on the first day is common. The equipment is simple, lightweight and relatively inexpensive compared to other aircraft. A paraglider is often confused with a parasail, which is towed behind a boat under a vented circular parachute. Paragliding offers much more of the flying experience. Launched by running down a slope into a breeze, the pilot can gently glide down hundreds or sometimes thousands of feet to a designated landing area. More experienced pilots can launch into the more active rising air to thousands of feet above the point of launch, soaring for several hours and traveling several miles across country. A simple wing—the kind of aircraft Leonardo da Vinci could have loved.

LAUNCHING: Each launch consists of three phases:

1. Inflating the canopy
2. Controlling and checking the canopy
3. Launching the canopy

The first step in a successful launch is “building a wall.” By using the wind to inflate your canopy you can clearly see the direction of the wind and get a general feel of wind speed.

A paraglider has a life span of about 300 hours of ultraviolet exposure.

FORCES ON A WING: A wing has the ability to create a force perpendicular to the flow of air over it and against the force of drag. This aerodynamic is called lift.

- A wing being acted upon by a balanced system of forces
- An average paraglider gets a lift to drag ratio of 7:1. In still air the forward horizontal speed through the air is 20 mph and the vertical descent speed is 3 mph
- With a 20-mph forward speed and 10-mph wind speed in the opposite direction, the resulting forward speed over the ground is 10 mph
- With the same descent rate, the resulting glide ratio over the ground is cut in half, or 2:1

CROSS-COUNTRY FLYING: Whenever flying to an area outside of the glider range, the pilot must launch and search for a thermal to climb to higher elevations and fly from one lift source to the next, extending the distance flown.

Mountain ridges typically collect thermals, and canyons channel stronger winds. These are areas where thermal density is enhanced, and can carry a paraglider to higher altitudes. These are also areas of turbulence and sinking air.

Places to View Paragliding: Los Angeles County, San Diego County, Orange County, Portuguese Bend

- Take dirt road to covered rest area. Pilots launch from Marshall Peak and Crestline
- Lake Gregory
- Cal State, Dixie San Bernadino
- University Park
- Mt. San Jacinto
- Palm Desert
